ABSTRACT

A bibliography is presented which covers the areas of library education; library science research; educational research; curriculum planning; teaching methods; various uses of media; school libraries and media centers; social science research; educational societies, associations, and research bureaus; and accreditation. Types of materials cited include background readings, guides, encyclopedia excerpts, indexes, reviews, reference books, dictionaries, annuals, directories, biographies, dissertations, theses, research reports, periodicals, abstracts, and indexes. Contents notes are given for some items. (LS)

Center for Educational Change Through Organizational and Technological Development

In order to provide a definitive focus for its developmental and research activities, the Educational Development Center at Kutztown State College on January 14, 1972 announced the adoption of its operation mission theme as "Educational Change through Organizational and Technological Development." The Center's activities focus on the educational change process and the interaction between organizational and technological development producing educational change.

EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH AND LIBRARY SCIENCE: A BIBLIOGRAPHIC CHECK LIST

This document was processed for the ERIC Document Reproduction Service by the ERIC Clearinghouse at Stanford. We are aware that some pages probably will not be readable in microfiche or in Hard Copy form. However, this is the best available copy, and we feel that the document should not be withheld from interested readers on the basis of these unreadable pages alone

FOREWORD

Contemporary societal pressures for increased accountability in education have induced a resurgence of interest in attempting to translate the practice of education into a more rational activity. Talcott Parsons has defined rational action as (1) moral neutralization of the elements of an activity; (2) freedom to adopt whatever means or approach is best suited to bring about some desired end or state of affairs; and (3) the tendency to differentiate specific properties of objects and patterns of activity instead of treating them as global entities, or undifferentiated cycles of activity.

It is in this more rational context that educational research assumes great importance, for systematic educational planning involves the use of research either in empirical evaluation or in generating hypotheses concerning possible cause and effect models.

Thus, this bibliographic check list focusing on educational research by Professor Nicholas Stevens is a most timely contribution to the literature. It is our hope that it will assist all those who are concerned directly with research in education or with systematic planning of educational programs.

PART FOUR: REFERENCES AND READINGS

I. PURPOSE:

What are the new trends and innovations in library science education, in education, library science research, educational research, in curriculum planning, in teaching methods, in the use of multi-media and the cross media and interdisciplinary approach to currilum implementation, and in school library media centers and libraries.

Like other professional educators - library science educators have their educational responsibilities increasingly complicated by the vast increase in knowledge brought about by the social, scientific and technological, economic and political changes today. The impact of these changes in modern society demands a careful and continuing reappraisal of all library practices and educational practices, and recognition of the greater role of libraries and school library media centers in today's educational program.

The purpose of this checklist is to serve as a bibliographical aid in the study of methods of research in library science and education.for library science educators, librarians, school library media specialists, administrators, teachers, curriculum coordinators, researchers, and other interested persons.
